2025 Education Staff Tryout

We are excited to announce our next hiring event on December 15th-16th. We're hiring alpine and snowboard Level I Clinic Leaders with an opportunity to become Level I Examiners for the 2025-26 season! The expectation is that these new education staff to be available at least 6 days during the season, travel outside of their home school for Level 1 clinics and exams, and have opportunities to attend training offered.

The tryout is open to anyone who has their PSIA-AASI Level III in the same discipline. For Alpine candidates, preferred (not required) selection criteria will recognize those who completed last year's Level I Examiner accreditation process and were active Level I examiners in their schools.

Selection criteria will also include superior teaching/clinicing, movement analysis and technical understanding skills as well as the ability to demonstrate beginner to intermediate zone activities at a consistency and precision appropriate for an examiner giving high quality demonstrations for an exam group. We will publish more specific criteria and details in the fall.

Those who are selected may be approved to give Level I exams following the updated two-day region-led process.

If you are interested, please email info@psia-nw.org, and we will add you to an informational Basecamp group where we will continue to share more details. Addition to the Basecamp group is only an expression of interest and doesn't mean you are committing to registering for the tryout. In order to participate in the tryout, you will need to complete the online registration on the psia-nw.org events calendar.

The role of a Level I clinic leader is one of the most impactful in the region. We look forward to hiring a talented and qualified group of professionals who can provide a premier exam experience to this large swath of our membership!
